A VERY HOPEFUL PROSPECT.

The Well-Considered Views of Financier and Business Man Who Tells of Omaha's Needs and Advantages.

Omaha's Greatness. Mr. W. G. Albright, senior member of the real estate firm of W. G. Albright & Co. "I am about taking a trip west, intending to stop at Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane Falls, and probably some other intermediate points, returning by way of St. Paul. "My journey is part of an established rule or programme to keep myself posted on what other cities are doing in the way of building themselves up. I have taken such jaunts every season, and the knowledge one gathers abroad serves as a most valuable guide for business transactions at home. My trip will necessarily be brief, as I am looking for an immediate revival of business here. Of course, I may make some investments if I find them safe and profitable, and may even join in some larger enterprises in some live western city.

"I most unequivocally retain faith in Omaha. She has been properly named the 'Gate City.' It is on the direct and oldest established line between the principal seaports on the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, and while nothing can deter its growth in any case, owing to the rich country of which it is the commercial center, the rapid growth of commerce between Europe and Asia is bound to aid in making Omaha one the most important distributing creased railroad facilities, projects for which are abundant. Omaha will sume the important place to which it is des-tined, but of which, I am sorry to say, but few of its residents have any proper concep-tion. We are now sending Nebraska corn to Duluth, whence we receive iron, coal and lumber in return. The products of our smelting works penetrate into every nook and corner of the earth. Omaha capital has been invested alike in California and Florida, and between these extremes in probably every other state and territory in the union. The names of Boyd and Paxton are prominent and weighty on the boards of trade in Chicago and New York, and even in the distant Argentine Republic franchises have been granted to Omaha capitalists. Omaha's enterprise is not bounded by the city limits of Omaha and cannot be, as the city is of such a decidedly cosmopolitan character, both from its mixed population and its business relations with all parts of the world. "Omaha needs no boom. It is bound to grow for the reasons I have endeavored to give, and while it had its set-backs, the same were due to perfectly natural causes. Never attaining any growth till 1861, when the building of the Union Pacific was decided upon, Omaha as the supply depot of this great transcontinental line, experienced a mushroom growth which collapsed with the completion of the road and the building of other cities along the line of the Union Pa-cific, all of which drew away from Omaha. A period of stagnation intensified by the grasshopper plague, was followed by a per-sistent struggle for self-preservation by those still having faith in Omaha's eventua emergence from its emoryo-chaotic state. Some money was accumulated the city's reputation for stability established, and as ment of the west, capital flowed in and from a population of 16,681 in 1870, and an esti-mated population of 50,000 in 1884, we have grown to one of 125,000 at the opening of this year."

"As to the probabilities of 1889. Millions of dollars will be expended in business blocks and private residences, as proved by the architects' reports: the city hall and postoffice buildings will be begun; with the same-

tion by the legislature of the consolidation of street car lines, a new impetus will be given in that direction. Philadelphia capital for warehouses has already been invested of the heels of Philadelphia capital for rapid Public improvements will keep pace with private enterprise, and I have yet to meet the first man who says Omaha will not enjoy one of the best years in its history."

"The steady development of South Omaha is a matter of course. The Magic City is simply performing its duty as laid down by natural laws, in building up around the stockyards and packing bouses. As was shown in an article of The Bee of January 9, 1887, the packing interests of Chicago sup port a population of 100,000, and the prepopulation of 12,000 in South Omaha is but an indication of what the future will make it. And nothing can stop or even hinder its progress. As long as people will cat meat, just so long will they be sup-plied, and since South Omaha has the best cattle and hog country to draw from, its fame as a packing center will continue long after Chicago has ceased to be the Porkopolis of America. There are immense improvements projected for South Omaha this year, involv present big capacity of the packing houses You think this is an extravagant statement That is exactly what others thought of state ments made by me in my advertisements at the time 1 laid out Albright's Choice, yet every prediction has been more than fulfilled. When the Union Pacific commenced running the incredulous prophesised their discon-tinuance in the near future, because it would not pay. Albright is now a blooming suburb of 1,500 souls, and has thirty-eight trains every day. Purchasers of property have paid up promptly and are well satisfied with their investments. You must bear in mind that Albright's Choice was placed upon the market when the boom was on the wane and yet its growth and prosperity have been uninterrupted. Yes, it is pre-emineutly residence property. Quite a number of Omaha's clerks and book-keepers have built their homes there, and reach their places of business in less time and in a much more comfortable manner than by street car from distant additions. The fare s only five cents on the morning and even ng trains. But these things will be ex-plained in our advertisements. I merely menioned the growth of Albright as a an evidence that I am not given to making statements not based on facts. The internal improvements n South Omaha, such as the building of viaducts on L and Q streets, extension of water and sewer systems, street car lines. paving and other private and public improve ments, while involving an expenditure of vast amounts of money and insuring the greatest activity, are but incidental to the growth of its chief indastry—that which made it -the stock yards and packing houses Without them corn would still be growing on N street. These interests are growing in magnitude so fast that South Omaha has to Yes you can say that South Omaha will see the best times it ever enjoyed this very year. The foundation for the future South Omaha is now laid, the re-location of America's Porkopolis fixed and irresistable will be its onward march of progress.

Obstacles Must be Removed.

"Omaha is all right," asserted Mr. J. W Harris, with considerable warmth of feeling. "Eastern capitalists have a better opinion of our city than the great majority of dur own wealthy men: Eastern men have made the growth of cities a study for years, and they know what the necessary elements are for the substantial growth of a city. They know, also, that Omaha has the location, the surroundings, resources and everything to make her one of the largest cities in the west. "Eastern capitalists are, however, sur prised at the little faith and confidence that some of our wealthy men manifest in Omaha's future, and cannot understand why it is that these Omaha capitalists are such creakers—crying down the city, instead of talking it up, nor why they do not pull together and combine in large undertakings such as an Omaha railread to the northwest and another to the southwest, thereby pelling all the other railroads to center here Also, why Omaha does not offer inducements for another railroad bridg: across the river and a union depot. From these easters capitalists, therefore, we can see what is neces sary for the rapid and permanent growth of our city. "Omaha will grow in spite of obstacles that may be thrown in her way; but what we want is to have all obstacles removed, and our citizens to take hold of all the important elements calculated to promote our interests. to stimulate a more rapid growth, and as in-ducements for capitalists to invest in Omaha realty, and manufacturers as a distributing point for their goods.

"If our citizens will now unitedly take hold with the members of the board of trade and the real estate men in the direction of securing new railroads not within the state, and a new union depot and a new bridge and manu-factures, Omaha will be a city of 300,000

opulation within five years from this time. cure greater manufacturing industries should be a fact patent to all. The time is rapidly approaching when our large laboring ele ent must depend upon these permanent enerprises for occupation. The physical ob-tacles encountered in building a great city at this point has for a few years back af men. This army has been engaged in cutting down and filling up and harmonizing all the sharp inequalities the topography of the site presented. After this prodigious task, came the demand for skilled and unskilled labor, incident to a building boom which was never equalled in the annals of any city in the country. In conjunction with this colossal building contract was the construction of many mites of cable road, to speak of the water mains, sewerage, gas, street railways, motor lines, electric light, and all the improvements which furnish occupation for labor in a new city. These conditions have rendered Omaha an in-viting field for people who are dependent upon manual labor for subsistence, and a very large proportion of our population is composed of this class. As the city grows older, and attains a greater degree of fluish, it is quite obvious that the industries grow-ing out of the formative stage will decrease. and unless they are supplied by something of a permanent character, the laboring classes must mevitably suffer, and, a consequence, so must all the terests of our city. Our capita and business men should open their eyes to those facts, and should make themselves instrumental in the establishment at this place of new industries at once hands of the general people as the great importance of the work invites, and as will nake success unquestionable "As I remarked in the outset," concluded

Mr. Harris, "I repeat again Omaha is all right, despite the incomprehensible apathy and lack of interest manifested by many of those who should be our leading and guiding spirits in all matters of progress and pros-

A Committee Appointed to Forward the Projects. As the board of trade believes that the Union Pacific road has not complied with its obligation to Omaha in the building of a suitable depot for the increasing business of the city by reason of the large amount of bonds voted for depot and sidetrack furnoses, and as the board took action on the matter at Monday night's meeting, a committee was appointed yesterday by President Martin, of The committee has been structed to lay the matter before the Union Pacific officers, and was requested to seek co-operation of citizens for better depot accommodations. The committee will also confer with the management of all railroads entering Omaha, and will see capitalists for the purpose of getting an expression on the proposition to build a union depot and bridge across the Missouri. These will be asked to take stock to the amount of $5,000,000. A free bridge is wanted so that all reads can enter the city, and it is thought the several roads will take stock in the bridge and depot The committee which has the matter in charge and which was appointed yesterday is composed of the following gentlemen of the board of trade: H. G. Clark, W. A. L. Gibbon, E. Rosewater, G. M. Hitchcock, Max Meyer, M. A. Upton, J. A. Wakefield, J. S. Brady and G. M. Natinger.

ROSE WAS PRUGAL. This Trait, Combined With Others,

Causes Her Trouble. Rose Anderson is in the toils, and has more money to her credit in one of the Omaha banks than many a business man Her method of werking was simple. She merely went to her employer's cash box and took as much as she wanted to swell her bank account. She is a Scandinavian and anything but good looking, but a year ago she secured the position of housekeeper for Ed Maurer. She kept house all right, and she kent cases on Ed's receipts at the same time. He frequently missed sums of money from the cash box he carried up stairs with him every night, but was unable to find grounds for suspicion against any one.

Tuesday eight he thought he would mark the money, and he did, and yesterday he found he was again short a considerable amount. On the advice of his attorney he procured a search warrant and proceeded to investigate, and to his surprise sound $110 of the marked money in possession of Rose. As that was the result of only one night's work, he examined still further, and finally she handed over $-75 which she admitted having stolen, together with about $50 worth of linen. Then there was a bank book procured, showing a balance of about $3,000. Part of this she claims to have won on a lottery ticket, part of it (some hundreds of dollars) she said was a Christmas gift from a sister in Chicago, and the balance she said she had earned somehow. The un feeling officials would not take her word, and case will be heard this afternoon.

A fact that has long been known is that a vast quantity of Omaha's well water is impure and unfit for usage. Being cognizant of this condition of the water, Dr. Ralph has been led to make an investigation, and through the kindness of Prof. Milroy, has been enabled to secure an analysis of this well water compared with the river water, which analysis Indubitably establishes that the well water, particularly in the thickly populated portions of the city, is of an alarmingly impure character, and likely to prove a serious breeder of disease. Some wells are worse than others, and some the doctor thinks ought not to be used for another day. The river water is far superior to that obtained from any other source, and, as a sanitary measure de-

Genteel Quacks.

"Yes, it pays," said a big, fat physician, with a name which is known throughout the medical world. "I have practice worth $40,000 a year." Women? Yes, you've guessed it first time. They pay $10 every time they come into my office. When one gets on my list I tell you she stays!" and Dr. H—— laughed long and loud. This io quackery-gilt-edged, genteel quackery-to keep suffering woman paying tribute year in and year out, and doing them no good. Dr. Pierce's favorite prescription cures the peculiar weakresses and diseases of women. It does not lie to them nor rob them.

A Morning Robbery. While E. Wheeler was passing over the Eleventh street viaduct about 6 o'clock two highwaymen sneaked up be-hind and knocked him down. One of them seized him by the wrists and held him while the other went through his pockets, taking his watch and $68 in money. The robbers then fied. Wheeler was stunned by the blow for a number of seconds, but as soon as he could collect his senses he hunted up an officer and informed him of the bold robbery. At latest accounts there was no clue as to the whereabouts of the thieves.

No Money in the Bank.

W. A. Vannice was arrested yesterday on the charge of obtaining money under false oretenses. He had hired a laboring man to do a job of work for him that amounted to $6. Vannice wrote out a check for $15 on the United States savings bank and gave it to the laborer, who in turn gave him $8 in money. The laboring man then went to the bank and, it is said, found that the check bank and, it is said, found that the cheeke was a forzery, as Vannice had no money on deposit there. A warrant was sworn out for Vannice's arrest, and he is now behind the bars awaiting trial.
